Dear Parents:

As the Advent of our Lord is well under way and your Christmas shopping lists consume more ink than you care to imagine or mention, please note our appeal, that you faithfully remain current with your OCS financial obligations.

Far too often, from far too many we hear of the “need” for obligations to be set aside in favor of gifts for family and friends. We urge a rethinking of that position and a consideration that sacrifice is to be made at one’s own, and not another’s expense.

We too, have financial obligations. Most significantly we have our teachers to pay. This is a time of year when your prompt payments are most appreciated. For those of you who are current, we give thanks. Your faithful commitment means the world to us.

In these most troubled times, remember OCS with your prayers and pocket books that all may enjoy a Merry Christmas.

Sincerely,

Rev. James DuJack
Headmaster, OCS
